A QUEST FOR PARITY

OCTAVIUS CATTO, WHOSE STATUE GRACES THE COVER OF THIS GUIDE, DEDICATED HIS LIFE TO BREAKING DOWN BARRIERS OF SOCIAL INJUSTICE.

One of the most influential African American leaders in Philadelphia during the 19th century, he contributed to forever amending the United States Constitution with his work toward the ratification of the 13th, 14th and 15th Amendments. Reframing what it meant to be an American, these Amendments have been referred to by historians as America’s “Second Founding.”

Catto fought for this country to live up to the founding ideals expressed in the Declaration of Independence, which he frequently referenced in his oratories on equity and inclusion. His voice was vanquished when he was murdered on his way to vote, but his efforts laid the foundation for those who followed him. His statue serves as an aspirational symbol of the evolution of freedom and equity and has become a center of peaceful protesting of the racial injustices and imbalance in our country.

This is not new to our city. From the “Annual Reminders” in front of Independence Hall that transformed a local LGBT campaign into a civil rights movement to the Justice Bell—a replica of the Liberty Bell—that traveled the United States to promote the ratification of the 19th Amendment, so many important social movements have their roots in Philadelphia.

Discover the spirit of America in Philadelphia—a city that continues to strive for equity and inclusion. Together we will persevere, with both hope and love, to be a more equitable place for all “...in order to form a more perfect union.”

LOVE SCULPTURE
by Robert Indiana

In honor of the U.S. Bicentennial in 1976, famed artist Robert Indiana was asked to lend his aluminum-molded LOVE sculpture to Philadelphia. It was placed in JFK Plaza, with a clear view all the way down the Benjamin Franklin Parkway to the Philadelphia Museum of Art. The plaza has since been known as LOVE Park and is arguably the most selfie-friendly spot in Philadelphia.

Location: 16th Street and JFK Boulevard

PHILADELPHIA’S MAGIC GARDENS
by Isaiah Zagar

Isaiah Zagar has been creating mosaics with cut mirror, tiles and “found objects” in Philadelphia since the 1960s. The epicenter of his art today is what he calls his “labyrinthine mosaic museum,” spanning three city blocks. Begun as a way to revitalize his neighborhood with public art installations, his work—and similar works by admirers—can now be found on hundreds of surfaces in the city.

Location: 1020 South Street

INSTA-DELPHIA

Philadelphia has a legacy of making art accessible. With the first art museum and school in the U.S. and more public art than any other American city, the spirit of Philadelphia can be found in the art that follows you down the street into parks, open spaces, museums and galleries.

ROCKY
by A. Thomas Schomberg
No trip to Philadelphia is complete without a visit to the Rocky steps and the Rocky statue at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. The sculpture was created as a prop for a scene in the film Rocky III, and Sylvester Stallone gave it to Philadelphia in 1982, as he felt that the fictional fighter Rocky Balboa was symbolic of the city, where anyone from anywhere can succeed with grit and hard work.

RICHARD ALLEN
by Fern Cunningham-Terry
Located outside Mother Bethel A.M.E. Church—the oldest property in the U.S. continuously owned by African Americans—this statue honors its founder, Richard Allen. Angered by racial segregation at church services, Allen, a freed slave and preacher, opened the church in 1794. He later founded the first black denomination in the country, African Methodist Episcopal Church, in 1816.

Location: 6th and Lombard streets

WE THE YOUTH
by Keith Haring
This mural by the Pennsylvania-born, iconic pop artist Keith Haring was created in 1987 for the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. (The title is a play on “We the People”). It is the only Keith Haring collaborative public mural remaining intact and on its original site, and was recently restored by Mural Arts Philadelphia.

Location: 22nd and Ellsworth streets

SWANN MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN
by Alexander Stirling Calder
Located in the center of Benjamin Franklin Parkway in Logan Square, the “Fountain of Three Rivers” Art Deco sculpture was created in 1924 and features Native American subjects that represent the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers and Wissahickon Creek. Calder’s father, Alexander Milne Calder is known for the immense bronze statue of Philadelphia founder William Penn, placed on top of City Hall in 1894—the largest in the world atop a public building.

8 FREE THINGS TO DO IN PHILADELPHIA

There’s no charge for checking out many of Philadelphia’s top attractions—from world-famous historical landmarks to diverse works of public art to outdoor attractions.

1 TOUR THE HISTORIC MILE. Independence National Historical Park (nps.gov/inde) is nicknamed “America’s most historic square mile.” Independence Hall is where the Declaration of Independence and U.S. Constitution were both debated and signed. Across the street, the Liberty Bell stands as an iconic symbol of freedom, and The President’s House, footprint of the nation’s first White House from 1790 to 1800, features the outdoor exhibit Freedom and Slavery in the Making of a New Nation. (For more Philadelphia firsts, visit page 28.)

2 VISIT THE FABRIC WORKSHOP AND MUSEUM, (fabricworkshopandmuseum.org), a free, contemporary art museum featuring work in fabrics and other materials.

3 CROSS THE BEN FRANKLIN BRIDGE BY FOOT OR BIKE. A 1.8-mile pedestrian walkway spans the iconic bridge, offering excellent views of the city skyline and Delaware River waterfront (drpa.org).

4 FOLLOW IN THE STEPS OF ROCKY BALBOA with a morning jog up the Rocky Steps to the Philadelphia Museum of Art (philamuseum.org)—don’t forget to take your photo with Rocky’s statue once you’ve cooled down.

5 LEARN ABOUT THE CITY THROUGH PUBLIC ART. Take a self-guided tour of Philadelphia’s abundant works of public art, from the colorful murals throughout the city that are part of the groundbreaking Mural Arts Program (muralarts.org) to the countless works commissioned and preserved by the Association for Public Art (associationforpublicart.org).

6 WALK THE QUARTER-MILE STRETCH of the city’s Rail Park, a former railroad viaduct that has been converted into a cool green space (therailpark.org).

7 SURVEY THE CITY’S RICH ARCHITECTURE through a downloadable, self-guided tour from the Preservation Alliance for Greater Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Center for Architecture and Design. From Horace Trumbauer to Frank Furness, discover the famous architects and building styles that have helped define the city (preservationalliance.com).

8 LOCATE THE FINAL RESTING PLACE of famous Philadelphians at the city’s historic cemeteries. Benjamin Franklin and Benjamin Rush are both buried at the Christ Church Burial Grounds (christchurchphila.org) at 5th and Arch streets. Dating back to 1836, Laurel Hill Cemetery (thelaurelhillcemetery.org) is a National Historic Landmark, with more than 30,000 eye-catching burial monuments—from obelisks to hillside tombs. Buried here are beloved Phillies announcer Harry Kalas and Civil War General George Meade.

PHILADELPHIA BRINGS HISTORY TO LIFE. From the signing of the Declaration of Independence to the founding of the country’s first hospital, botanical garden, lending library and more, the region is rich in attractions that tell America’s story. But we’re not just a destination for history buffs. Art lovers will love the vast collection of outdoor works—from modern sculptures to colorful murals. Nature lovers will rejoice at the countless paved and unpaved trails that wind through the city’s expansive Fairmount Park, while shoppers can stroll along the vibrant business districts and discover independent shops and boutiques. With abundant green space and so many outdoor attractions, it’s easy to enjoy the best of the city—socially distanced and safely.

One of the country’s largest urban park systems, with 2,000-plus green acres, Fairmount Park is not just a vast outdoor playground with 63 individual parks and countless trails, it also offers more than 200 historic buildings, an impressive collection of public art, the country’s first zoo and more, all within its borders.

A great place to start your park tour is the Fairmount Water Works, a National Historic Landmark along the Schuylkill River. In 1820, the city decided to add gardens and walkways around the groundbreaking pumping station, opened five years earlier, as a way of protecting the water system and preserving green space. Today, the iconic Greek-Revival buildings at the foot of the Philadelphia Museum of Art provide excellent views of both picturesque Boathouse Row and the Philadelphia skyline.

History and architecture buffs will enjoy the many 18th and 19th century homes found throughout the park that once served as summer villas for wealthy Philadelphians, including Laurel Hill, Lemon Hill, Strawberry and Woodford mansions. Perfect for families is Smith Memorial Playground & Playhouse, a mansion-turned-playhouse for kids. Smith’s massive outdoor playground draws kids 10 and under with its giant 40-foot slide and swing city. parkcharms.org, smithplayground.org

Transport yourself across the Pacific at Shofuso Japanese House, a replica of a traditional 17th-century Japanese home in West Fairmount Park. Highlights include a pond garden with tiered waterfall, island and koi fish plus a tea garden with a traditional tea house. japanphilly.org

Also located in West Fairmount Park is the Horticulture Center, an exhibition hall and greenhouse built in 1979 on the grounds of the 1876 Centennial International Exhibition. Open daily and free to the public, it has tropical and succulent plants, demonstration gardens, a reflecting pool, butterfly garden and more. Don’t miss artist Martin Puryear’s treehouse-inspired Pavilion in the Trees, a 60-foot-long wooden walkway that overlooks the center. myphillypark.org

PSST: Public art is scattered throughout Fairmount Park. Look for works by Alexander Milne Calder, Frederick Remington, William Rush and more. For an interactive map, visit associationforpublicart.org.
An extensive system of trails winds throughout the Philadelphia region, making it easy to get out and get around. Popular with bikers, runners, walkers and in-line skaters is the section of the Schuylkill River Trail that cuts through the city. It includes the Manayunk Towpath, Kelly Drive, Boathouse Row and the Schuylkill Banks. Ambitious cyclists can follow the trail 20-plus miles to Valley Forge National Historical Park, site of the notorious Revolutionary War campaign. schuylkillriver.org.

Go off the beaten path to find hidden gems popular with locals. The Trolley Trail, just off MLK Drive, follows a former trolley route, winding through tunnels and other cool structures, like the Stone Arch Bridge. You can also run the route of a famous Philadelphia boxer—no, not Rocky. Boxers’ Trail, a 3.8-mile gravel and dirt path above Kelly Drive, owes its name to “Smokin’” Joe Frazier, who frequently trained on it. myphillyparks.com.

Head deeper into the woods along the 50 miles of trails in the Wissahickon Valley Park, located in the northwest section of the city. Trails range from easy to challenging, with hidden landmarks located throughout, including a covered bridge originally built in 1737, artist Jody Pinto’s Fingerspan pedestrian bridge and the 1883 Toleration statue of a man in Quaker garb that sits high above the trail.

PSST: You can follow a steep trail to the statue’s base. fow.org.

Philadelphia is a city of neighborhoods, each with its own personality. What better way to get to know them and their retail spots than by exploring each by foot. Even better, many of the neighborhoods are so close to each other, it’s easy to walk from one to another.

Old City may be your go-to for early American sites, but it’s also home to hip boutiques and cool shops, like Philadelphia Independents and Art in the Age. The Bourse, the country’s first commodities exchange, was recently transformed into a food hall and shopping destination, and is just across from Independence Hall. oldcitydistrict.org, philadelphiaindependents.com, artintheage.com, theboursephilly.com.

South Street, the city’s edgiest strip, is a go-to for intimate music venues, eclectic shops and plenty of hopping restaurants and bars. Further south on 4th Street, you’ll hit historic Fabric Row, the city’s garment district since the 19th century. southstreet.com, fabricrow.com.

Jewelers’ Row in Washington Square continues to be a destination for fine gems in the area, while the 13th Street corridor between Chestnut and Locust streets in Midtown Village is a newer spot for fun boutiques and gift shops—and some of the city’s top restaurants. jrow.org.

Posh shops and national retailers populate Rittenhouse Row, just off Rittenhouse Square. Cross the Schuylkill River to dynamic West Philadelphia, for more shopping plus a wide selection of ethnic restaurants. rittenhouserow.org, universitycity.org.
When Pennsylvania founder William Penn laid out the plan for Philadelphia, he famously included five squares, one at each of the city’s cornerstones and one in the middle. These squares, each with their own identities, remain vital to the city to this day.

Rittenhouse Square, lined with alfresco restaurants, is named for David Rittenhouse, first director of the U.S. Mint. Home to fountains and public art, pop-up events and a seasonal farmers market, it’s also an ideal locale for people-watching. rittenhouserow.org

Lower-key Washington Square was named for George Washington and is home to the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary War Soldier. Located catty-corner to Independence Hall, it is part of Independence National Historical Park and is surrounded by charming restaurants and historic buildings. nps.gov/inde

Dilworth Park, named after former city Mayor Richardson Dilworth, is on what was Centre Square, the center of the city. The square became the home of City Hall in 1871, with the construction of the famed Beaux-Arts building. Today, Dilworth is also a social hub of the city, with an ice-skating rink in the winter and seasonal pop-ups year-round. centercityphila.org

Family-friendly Franklin Square, named after founding father Benjamin Franklin, attracts kids with its history-themed mini golf course, classic carousel and extensive playground. At the centerpiece of the square is a large fountain, with water shows set to lights and music throughout the year. historicphiladelphia.org

At the center of the Benjamin Franklin Parkway is Logan Square, easily identified by the majestic Swann Memorial Fountain, an Alexander Stirling Calder installation honoring Philadelphia Fountain Society founder, Dr. Wilson Cary Swann. Originally called Northwest Square, the city renamed the area after statesman James Logan in 1825. parkwaymuseumsdistrictphiladelphia.org

The Delaware River Waterfront is a vibrant destination for outdoor fun. During the summer and winter months, Blue Cross RiverRink is a great tradition featuring fantastic food, craft beer and drinks, and cool activities. In the spring and summer, experience the festive Spruce Street Harbor Park Sustained by Univest.

Open year-round is Cherry Street Pier, a mixed-use public space converted from a historic pier. The pier hosts pop-up markets, art installations and a garden complete with tasty food and drink. For picturesque views of the Ben Franklin Bridge, head further north to Race Street Pier, perfect for lazing on the spacious lawn while enjoying river views.

At the southern end, Washington Avenue Pier honors the waterfront’s shipbuilding heritage and historic port-of-entry for immigrants. A path brings visitors to the tip of the pier and Land Buoy, a climbable, 55-foot spire by artist Jody Pinto that offers additional city and river views. delawareriverwaterfront.com

Across the river, tour Battleship New Jersey Museum & Memorial, the most-decorated battleship in U.S. history. Explore the ocean and its inhabitants at Adventure Aquarium, home to more than 8,500 aquatic species. See more than 20 sharks swim through 550,000 gallons of water as you walk through a glass tunnel, journey to the Amazon through the interactive Piranha Falls exhibit, or spot hippos swimming around in the immersive Hippo Haven. HISTORY HAPPENS HERE

Philadelphia is a city of firsts, including many groundbreaking civic, science and cultural institutions. Today, many of these sites are must-see attractions that offer a deeper insight into American history.

BIRTHPLACE OF AMERICA
The cradle of American democracy, Independence Hall was the site of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and where the U.S. Constitution was drafted. Across the street, you’ll find the Liberty Bell and the President’s House: Freedom and Slavery in the Making of a New Nation, an open-air installation that marks the footprint of the first executive mansion. The site educates visitors about the African slaves who labored there. Nearby, the National Constitution Center brings the U.S. Constitution to life through multimedia exhibits, engaging performances and historic artifacts. nps.gov/inde, phila.gov/presidentshouse, constitutioncenter.org

FIRST CONTINENTAL CONGRESS
Before drafting the Declaration of Independence, the founding fathers first met in the fall of 1774, at Carpenters’ Hall to list their grievances for the King of England. Today, the museum has on display the original chairs used at the meeting along with other period artifacts. carpentershall.org

FIRST AMERICAN FLAG
Betsy Ross, reportedly sewed the first American flag in 1776 at the request of George Washington. Hear the story from “Betsy” herself at the Betsy Ross House and explore the restored 18th-century home she once rented with her husband. historicphiladelphia.org

FIRST LENDING LIBRARY
Benjamin Franklin founded the Library Company of Philadelphia, the country’s first successful lending library, in 1731. Today, the research library focuses on U.S. society and culture from the 17th to 19th centuries and has a vast collection of rare books, manuscripts, prints and more. librarycompany.org

FIRST HOSPITAL
The ever-ambitious Franklin also founded Pennsylvania Hospital, in 1751 with Dr. Thomas Bond. The historic Pine Building offers a 13,000-volume library and is home to a preserved seven-pound tumor and the oldest surgical amphitheater in the country. pennmedicine.org/pahosp

FIRST ART MUSEUM & SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS
Charles Willson Peale spearheaded the founding of Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in 1805. The museum now houses a renowned collection of American paintings and artwork from its students. pafa.org

FIRST BOTANICAL GARDEN
A pioneering American botanist, John Bartram traveled the colonies collecting and studying indigenous plants. His work lives on at Bartram’s Garden, founded in 1728. The 45-acre site on the Schuylkill River has a botanical garden, wildflower meadow, water garden and Bartram’s 18th-century home. bartramsgarden.org

FIRST ZOO
The original Frank Furness Victorian gates and gatehouses still stand today at the entrance of the 42-acre Philadelphia Zoo, chartered in 1859. Today, it’s home to more than 1,300 animals. philadelphiazoo.org

CITY OF MURALS

Philadelphia boasts more than 4,000 colorful works of art on buildings and structures throughout the city, created mostly by Mural Arts Philadelphia. The nation’s largest public art program offers visitors the opportunity to see some of these pieces on guided and self-guided tours, by foot, trolley, train or Segway.

< CONVERGENCE
Rebecca Rutstein was inspired by river currents and the energetic crisscrossing of river, railroad, trails, bridges and more, when creating this almost 7,500-square-foot mural that overlooks Schuylkill Banks.
Location: South Street and Schuylkill Banks

✓ STRENGTH IN OUR BONDS
Ernel Martinez’s 20-foot-high and 120-foot-wide mural reflects a shared vision of Philadelphia that grew out of conversations hosted by the Philadelphia Foundation and celebrates the philanthropic organization’s 100 years.
Location: 23rd and Market streets

Learn more about the “Mural Capital of the World” at discoverPHL.com/blog/city-of-murals.
COLORFUL LEGACY
Willis “Nomo” Humphrey and Keir Johnston’s mural seeks to raise awareness about the issues boys and men of color face in access to education and jobs as well as to reduce the stigma of getting help for behavioral health.
Location: 40th and Chestnut streets

WIDE OPEN
Jim Houser’s depiction of Philadelphia in this mural includes themes like the concept of brotherly love, family and friends, a love of skateboarding and music and the complex intersection of danger and beauty.
Location: 600 Spring Garden Street

THE SILENT WATCHER
Artist Faith XLVII’s West Philadelphia mural is 11,000 square feet and 19 stories tall and depicts a woman staring down with a caring gaze on University Square, an affordable housing complex for seniors.

EXCURSIONS

Exciting adventures, just a short drive away.

While Philadelphia boasts a wide range of attractions and activities for all ages and interests, it’s also the perfect starting point for excursions into the surrounding region. Destinations in the greater Philadelphia region, including surrounding counties, New Jersey and Delaware, are often just a one-to-two hour drive from Center City. Whether you’re stopping to smell the flowers in horticultural hotspot Longwood Gardens, sampling sweetness in Hershey’s chocolate capital of the world, hitting the outlets in the surrounding counties, or retracing the footsteps of Revolutionary soldiers in Valley Forge National Historical Park, there’s no shortage of things to do outside Philadelphia’s limits.

Crystal Cave
963 Crystal Cave Road, Kutztown, PA

Come to Crystal Cave and experience PA’s greatest natural wonder. Offering 1 hour guided tours through the cave daily from March 1st through November 30th. See a dazzling display of crystals, stalactites, stalagmites, and flowstone in various shades and colors. Open daily 9-5 with extended summer hours. 150 scenic acres, gift and souvenir buildings, rock shop, nature trail and panning for gemstones. Miniature golf, ice cream parlor, cafe/restaurant, and museum are open seasonally. Near Rt. 222 between Reading and Allentown. Discover the exciting beauty of Crystal Cave operating since 1871. Great field trip destination. Admission. 610-683-6765 | CRYSTALCAVEPA.COM

Chestnut Hill Business District
7600-8700 Germantown Avenue, Chestnut Hill

In spring and summer, Philadelphia’s Garden District is a must-visit excursion, just a short scenic drive or train ride from Center City, Philadelphia. This charming village pairs lush outdoor attractions with urban amenities, and is home to Morris Arboretum, Woodmere Art Museum, independent boutiques and art galleries, craft breweries, and contemporary cuisine.

Scout out 9 Philly locations that were brought to the big screen and television, and re-enact the scenes that made these spots famous.

PHILADELPHIA MUSEUM OF ART
2600 Benjamin Franklin Parkway
The 72 stone steps leading to the museum entrance earned the nickname the “Rocky Steps,” after the Italian Stallion’s epic training run in Rocky. Be sure to snap a photo with the bronze Rocky statue at the base of the stairs.

AMTRAK 30TH STREET STATION
2955 Market Street
The hustle and bustle of this iconic railroad station helped serve fast-paced scenes in Witness, Unbreakable, The Visit, Trading Places and TV’s Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D.

Philadelphia’s food scene is booming. From nationally recognized restaurants with award-winning chefs to local favorites, there’s something to excite every palate.

Philadelphians are passionate about food. Home to internationally acclaimed restaurants like Zahav, winner of the James Beard Award for Best Restaurant in 2019, and award-winning chefs like Michael Solomonov, Greg Vernick, Marc Vetri, Nick Elmi and Cristina Martinez, our diverse restaurants serve everything from classic American and traditional ethnic foods to experimental fusion dishes that wow the palate. Of course, Philadelphia eats aren’t strictly gourmet. Home of the cheesesteak and hoagie, the city also boasts countless establishments dishing out homegrown favorites, the memory of which will have you planning a return trip before you’ve even made it home. Check out one (or three or four) of our many local eateries—either for outdoor dining or curbside pickup—and taste for yourself.

LOCAL FAVORITES

Philadelphia may be a renowned culinary destination, but it’s also home to some bucket-list-worthy comfort-food classics.

CHEESESTEAKS
Like Rocky and the Liberty Bell, the cheesesteak is integral to Philadelphia’s identity. Pat Olivieri, a hot dog vendor from South Philadelphia, is credited with its invention in the 1930s, when his brother requested grilled beef on an Italian roll. Soon after, a city-wide obsession was born. For a truly local experience, head to the Italian Market, where you’ll find PAT’S KING OF STEAKS and its catty-corner rival, GENO’S STEAKS. No matter where you order, a classic cheesesteak is made with thinly sliced, sauteed ribeye beef and melted cheese on a long roll. TIP: To order like a local, ask for “whiz wit” for Cheese Whiz and onions. patskingofsteaks.com, genosteaks.com

SCRAPPLE
Scrapple derives from panhaas, a German meat pudding that utilizes scraps of meat. The Germans brought the concept with them when they immigrated to the United States. In 1863, Habbersett Pork Products, one of the most popular scrapple producers, opened in Media, just outside Center City. Today, scrapple is sliced, fried and served as a side with breakfast. Enjoy some scrapple at breakfast joints like the Down Home Diner or Dutch Eating Place in READING TERMINAL MARKET. readingterminalmarket.org

ROAST PORK SANDWICH
Arguably the cheesesteak’s more refined cousin, the roast pork sandwich may not be as recognized nationally, but it has an equally fervent local fanbase. (The roast pork sandwich at DiNic’s Roast Pork in the READING TERMINAL MARKET earned the award “Best Sandwich in America” from the Travel Channel.) The sandwich’s origins are unclear but rooted in Italian-American cooking. At traditional eateries, it is made with thin-sliced roast pork and served on a sesame seed long roll with sharp provolone and lightly salted broccoli rabe. readingterminalmarket.org

HOAGIES
No matter its origins—some say it was named after the World War I workers on Hog Island, others the Irish immigrant shipbuilder Hogan—this submarine-style sandwich is a Philadelphia classic. A good hoagie consists of Italian cold cuts, cheese, lettuce, tomatoes and onions piled into an Italian long roll, topped with vinegar and oil, and served cold. The lunchtime favorite became the official sandwich of Philadelphia in 1992. Visit popular spots like CAMPO’S PHILLY CHEESESTEAKS to sample this homegrown specialty. camposdeli.com

SOFT PRETZELS
Soft pretzels came to the United States in the 1800s with the Pennsylvania Dutch, who settled in Lancaster County. Popularized in Philadelphia at area farmers markets, soft pretzels were soon being produced at factories across the city. The distinct figure-eight shape of local pretzels evolved to better fit conveyor-belt production. Local chains abound selling fresh-from-the-oven pretzels, or for an Amish-style alternative, the Amish-made soft pretzels at For more local favorites, visit discoverPHL.com/blog/eat-like-a-local-in-phila.

LEMON HILL

PHILADELPHIA OFFERS PLENTY OF WIDE OPEN GREEN SPACES, including Lemon Hill in Fairmount Park, which affords spectacular views of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, skyline and the Schuylkill River. Fairmount Park was officially founded in 1855 at Lemon Hill, once the sprawling home and grounds of local merchant Henry Pratt. Today, the park is an ideal spot for picnics, yoga, photography and more.
